

Teaching Loads

The basic teaching load at Southeastern is the equivalent of 15 hours of lecture per week. Normally two or three hours of laboratory assignment are calculated as one lecture hour. Reductions in teaching loads may be made for committee and administrative assignments and for scholarly activities.

EXTENDED WORKLOAD

Southeastern Louisiana University encourages faculty and staff members to become involved in activities that enhance the University's mission of instruction, research, and se

Supplemental Compensation. The policy of a sponsoring agency shall govern additional compensation when it is more restrictive than the University's policy. It should be noted that few federal agencies allow for overload compensation. Persons who are successful at receiving more than one concurrent grant, therefore, are responsible for hiring sufficient staff to assist in administering and directing the projects.
